

Abstract

The present invention is related to a guiding member for guiding surgical instruments to a target volume inside a patient. The present invention also concerns surgical instruments specifically adapted for cardiac or hepatic surgery as well as a surgical assembly coupling said guiding member and said surgical instruments.

(Figure 14)